SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTION

An election to elect a school district trustee is to be held in every one of Morgan county's sub school districts on the first Saturday in July.

Your school trustee is important. On him depends very largely the success or failure of your school.

Men or women who are unselfish, who are interested in their community, and who may be depended upon to put the welfare of the children above personal considerations should be selected for the positions.

Bitter contests for trustee should be avoided. The fact that a man stages a personal fight for this position should go a long way with voters to disqualify him for the position.

At best the position is one of service and self sacrifice and should never be considered in any other way.

TURNER GETS STRONG ENDORSEMENTS FOR SENATOR

Jackson, Ky., March 30.—Ervin Turner of this place who is a candidate for state senator from this, the 34th senatorial district on the Democratic ticket, is receiving encouraging reports from every county in the district and from three of the five counties has received official endorsements.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of Breathitt county held at Jackson, March 8, 1933, a resolution endorsing and recommending Ervin Turner to the other counties comprising the district was passed and signed by 27 of the 32 precinct committeemen, and the county chairman, five committeemen being absent.

At a meeting of the Wolfe county Democratic Executive Committee specifically called for this purpose at Campton, March 6, 1933, 13 out of the 14 precinct committeemen being present, strong resolutions of confidence and pledge of support for Ervin Turner were unanimously adopted and signed by the committee.

At a meeting of the Lee county Democratic Executive Committee held at Beattyville on February 27, 1933, at which 19 members were present besides numerous other party leaders Ervin Turner of Jackson was endorsed and pledged support for the nomination for state senator from the 34th senatorial district, at the August primary. The counties composing the district are Morgan, Magoffin, Wolfe, Breathitt and Lee.

REDUCE CONGRESS

There never was need for so many Congressmen and Senators and since President Roosevelt has been dedicated the job of dictator, there is still less. One Senator from each state is enough and what is the need of two, any more than to give some politician a job. Not one Senator out of every ten gains enough fame to be heard out of his own state. Congress could be reduced by half as there is not one Congressman out of every 100 that is heard of outside of his own state. About the biggest thing most of them do, is to draw their salary, and show constituents around the Capitol when they are visiting in Washington. The country is out for real economy and is ready and willing to back the President in any economy measures that he undertakes, but he must be fair. To cut the soldiers forty or fifty percent and only cut political salaries 15 percent is hardly fair. Then we imagine that there are a lot of political jobs that could be done away with entirely, if the President was so minded.

A rough estimate that, each Congressman and Senator, with his office personnel cost the Government something like $100,000 per year. If half of this expense was eliminated, it would help a great deal in balancing the budget that we hear so much about.

Kentucky could manage to live, in fact there would be no loss of any valuable property or opportunity, if we had only one Senator and four Congressmen to represent us in Washington. Our national needs would be looked after just as well, as if we had a hundred. President Roosevelt could make another popular stroke in favor of the taxpayers to reduce the number of law makers by half.—Middleboro Three States.

An Experiment on Earth Worms Conducted by the Biology Class, by William A. Blair.

We conducted four experiments on March 22, 1933, as follows:

(1) We cut an earth worm in two above the band, or near the head. On the 28th of this month we found that the posterior part lived and developed a new head, but the head which we cut off had decayed.

(2) We cut an earth worm in two below the band. Both ends were alive when we examined them on March 28. The anterior part had developed into a new worm and was very active. The posterior had grown a new head but was not quite so active.

(3) We cut an earth worm both above and below the band, making three pieces. The part containing the band grew a new head and a new tail. The posterior grew another tail and it will starve to death because it has no opening through which it can take in food.

(4) We cut another earth worm in two in the center of the band. On examination we found the anterior part dead and the posterior part alive.

The play presented by the ladies of Salyersville was fairly well attended. The proceeds amounted to $16.17 of this amount the P. T. A. received $6.47.

Grade cards will be handed out this week. Parents are urged to examine these cards carefully. If your child is not making the progress you think he should, talk the matter over with your child, then confer with the teacher about the matter. "The home and the school should work together for the good of the child."

The Greatest Need of Youth

D. J. CARTY

When I was here before, I attempted to tell you what the youth of today desires most; and I told you that it was the thing called Happiness. I also told you that real happiness is found by developing the qualities within you. I told you the moment you cease to grow and develop these qualities that you become unhappy. I hope that you are happier today than you were then. If you are not, you should be; for the more we grow the happier we should become.

Today I shall discuss with you for a few moments, not the greatest desire of youth, but the greatest need of youth today. And may I say at the outset that when you secure what I consider the greatest need of youth today, you will discover that you have found the thing you most desire; namely, happiness and success.

Yes, I believe Discipline to be the greatest need of the youth today. Now, if your parents were here as I say this, no doubt they would all join in with your teachers in saying Amen. Of course your teachers didn't say this but I heard some of them think it mighty strong. They no doubt would have in mind that kind of discipline that is secured by the use of the rod, the razor strap or the broomstick. But this is not the kind of discipline I have in mind; although, my guess is that some of you actually need that kind of discipline—at times.

One writer has said that Discipline is Guidance into the Right Kind of Living. Now, this is the kind of discipline that I have in mind. Therefore, the greatest need of the youth of today is guidance into the right kind of living. My contention is that if you are properly guided into the right kind of living, you will have found the thing you most desire—happiness and success.

Now, if guidance into the right kind of living is the greatest need of the youth today, what are some of these desirable home and school ideals and standards by which the discipline of youth can be measured and determined and developed? I believe the most important function of the home, the school, and the church is the guiding of people into the right kind of living. This is the most important question facing the youth of our country today. It involves everything that is worthwhile.

There was a time when education was defined as something which prepared you to earn a living. That is particularly true today; that is if they meant the right kind of living. Today we think of the right kind of education as something which guides us into the right kind of living. There are too many people today who call themselves educated, but it happens to not be of the right kind. There are people who are able to read, write, spell and figure, and who have gained control of the fundamental subjects which are desirable for all; but they are not able to take these activities and mould the right kind of a life or grow into a well rounded citizen.

So, what are some of the essentials that youth must develop in order that they may be guided into the right kind of a living? I shall divide the activities of a well rounded life into five headings: the physical, the mental, the moral, the aesthetic and the social. The attainment of the right kind of a living is conditioned by the development of the physical efficiency, mental efficiency, moral efficiency, aesthetic efficiency and social efficiency of the individual. If you desire to be successful, you cannot leave off either of these qualities.

The first and probably the most important of these essentials is the development of your physical efficiency. Are you gaining proper health habits? Are you always happy? Can you feel yourself growing and making progress without fear or sense of inferiority? What is your mental attitude toward your work? your school, your teachers, and your classmates? Are you hard to get along with? Do you have enemies among your classmates or your neighbors? Do you lose control of your temper? If so, your physical efficiency is not what it should be.

It is your business, and you should see to it that you are at all times striving to develop the right ideals and habits of conduct that will give to you physical efficiency. You have no doubt formed several habits that will sooner or later be detrimental to your health unless they are broken. There are probably certain physical defects that must be corrected before you can become physically fit. You may be oversleeping or undersleeping; you may be eating too much or eating too little; you may over exercise or under exercise. Whatever the trouble is, you must find it and correct it. It is your business to make the necessary adjustments of your physical machine which will give greater power and control in guiding your life into the right kind of living.

The development of your physical makeup is no more important than your mental machine. Mind is the piness or unhappiness, success or failure, instrument by which we receive happiness. There are four typical classes of minds: First, the mind which is closed and will never open—this is the mind of the Bigot. Second, the mind which is open and can never be closed—this is the mind of the man who is characterized by indecision. Third, the mind which is open on the dark side and closed on the bright side—this is the mind of the Pessimist. Fourth, the mind which is closed on the dark side and open on the bright side—this is the mind of the Optimist.

I presume most of you here can read, write, spell and figure. At least you think you can; well, I hope you can. That shows that you have a mind which is open, but I am not sure on which side. Your knowledge of these subjects is no proof that you can earn the right kind of living. I once knew a man who could write; he could write so well that he signed another man's name to a check, and is now serving a term in the penitentiary for it. He failed to develop the right kind of mental efficiency.

Now, the question is does a knowledge of these fundamental subjects help you to understand the needs of life? If not, you are mentally inefficient. Is the knowledge you are gaining in school helping you to have a more wholesome attitude toward the local, the state, the national, and the international good? Is it helping to stimulate within you a desire to help find the solution of the problems facing your school, your community, state, nation and the world? If not, something is wrong with your mental training. Mental efficiency means the correct interpretation and application of the facts and information which are necessary to produce the right kind of a life. Your ambition should be to develop your mental efficiency to the fullest capacity.

The third essential which youth must develop in order that they may be guided into the right kind of living is the development of Moral Efficiency. Can you distinguish between right and wrong? Are you fair, unselfish, courageous, and loyal; self reliant, trustworthy, and honest? There are four great tests of character. First, the home test: how a man treats those with whom he lives. Second, the business test: how a man conducts himself toward his customers and employees or employees. Third, how a man acts toward those who do not enjoy the same social advantages as himself. Fourth, how a man behaves when he secures wealth, power, position and honor.

The man who exchanges character for cash, purity for power, principle for party, manhood for money, his soul for silver and his God for gold is a failure, first, last and always. Men have been known to spend years of labor, making themselves physically fit and mentally fit, then go down in shame and despair because they were not morally fit. The great crisis then when we are passing is calling for men and women who are honest; doctors who are trustworthy, lawyers who are dependable, politicians who are true and courageous, and business men who are above reproach. The challenge is to the youth of our country, and it is up to them to form the habit now, early in life, of making the right decision in every situation.

Now, after you see to it that you are preparing yourself physically, mentally and morally, I suggest that you develop your aesthetic qualities. I mean by that that you should develop a love and an appreciation for the beautiful and a beautiful painting or admire a beautiful landscape? Do you believe in the things that are sacred and divine? A well rounded life does not neglect to develop the aesthetic qualities that make for the right kind of living.

The purpose of all this physical,

CANNEL CITY SCHOOL NOTES

The debating team, under the supervision of Mr. Burton, attended the debate tournament of this district held at Hazard last Friday and Saturday. Schools participating in the meet besides Cannel City were: Frenchburg, Highland, Riverside, Hazard, Vico, Ezel and Jenkins. Mr. Waldo Risner, representing the school in oratory, won the right to represent the district in the state meet, to be held at Lexington in the middle of April. After winning their way to the finals the debating team, composed of Hershel Collinsworth, Beelo Patrick, Homer Ratliff and Alex Spencer, lost a close decision to Frenchburg. The final debate, a contest for the right to go to Lexington, was made more spirited because a gold loving cup to be presented to the winner was placed between them. Cannel City had to represent the affirmative side of the question which thrust the tournament was the losing side, and they also failed to get to use the lucky side of the floor. There were many good teams in the tournament and the school felt proud of the showing made there. Mr. Risner will go to Lexington in April to compete against the winners from fifteen other districts.

mental, moral and aesthetic efficiency is to enable the individual to make the right sort of adjustments to society. No one can live alone in the world. Everyone must live with someone else. No family can live for any great length of time without the cooperation of other families. No community can develop the right kind of living conditions without cooperating with other communities. No nation can long endure without cooperating with other nations. Their problems are our problems and our problems are their problems. The major activities of national and international life are so interwoven that they are inseparable. Therefore, we are compelled to develop an appreciation of and a desire for the worthwhile activities of mankind everywhere if we are to obtain the best there is in store for us.

The developments of social efficiency is fundamental in the preservation of this democracy of ours. You must catch the new conception of the new patriotism. A true patriot never says, "My Country, right or wrong," but "My Country, to keep her always right." Youth must learn to defend the principles of right in times of peace as well as in times of war. Real patriotism is an emotion akin to religion.

True patriotism votes as well as fights, and at the ballot box war can be made or unmade. The man who would rather die for his country in times of war, but who has not enough interest in her welfare to vote in times of peace is not a true patriotic citizen. True patriotism works unceasingly for common good. Its spirit is that of service and sacrifice. It serves its country farther than its class, or business.

For the past few moments, I have attempted to point out to you, that the greatest need of the youth of today is discipline, and that discipline is guidance into the right kind of living. I have named for you a few of the great sign posts which, if truly followed, will rightly guide you along this great highway of life. One writer has said, "This life given to us by nature is short, but the memory of a well spent life is eternal."

Another has said, "Do not covet learning's prize, Climb her heights and take it; For in ourselves our fortune lies, Life is what we make it."

You have no doubt heard the expression, "Hitch your wagon to the stars," may you think of these qualities which I have mentioned as the stars and your life as the compass always pointing toward them. But don't do like the old ignorant slave

CALL TO PRAYER

In keeping with our new slogan, "Advance, Not Retreat," in this time of National Crisis, we hereby call upon the Christian Churches, all Temperance and Missionary Societies to join with the Kentucky Woman's Christian Temperance Union in importunate, continued prayer for a mighty outpouring of God's spirit upon our nation.

"We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." All the powers of evil are arrayed on the side of the liquor forces for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the reestablishment of the legalized liquor traffic.

1. We designate Wednesday, April 12th, as a special day of prayer, calling upon Christians of every Denomination to assemble themselves in their churches and pray God to give us the wisdom, the courage, and the strength to meet this present onslaught of the enemy against the prohibition laws in state and nation, and specifically for the retention of the Eighteenth Amendment.

2. In keeping with our Crusade Celebration plans, we urge immediate organization of praying bands of women in every church or community. The bands to meet for one hour each week, if possible, if not, as often as local conditions permit.

3. The noontide is a call to prayer to White Ribboners around the world. We call all Christians to join us at this hour for three minutes of earnest supplication for our great cause. At home or abroad—on the street, in the place of business, anywhere or everywhere, let the heart be lifted in supplication, for as Mr. Moody well said: "God's best gifts, like valuable jewels, are kept under lock and key and those who want them must with fervent faith importunately ask for them, for God is the rewarder of those that diligently seek Him."

Signed,

Kentucky Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

INSPECTOR FINDS FAULT

Frankfort, Ky., April 1.—A complete reorganization of the fiscal affairs of Morgan county is needed, Nat B. Sewell, state inspector and examiner, said in a report on the county filed today with Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

He showed that the county owes $155,000 in road and bridge bonds, $75,000 in county warrants and $78,000 borrowed on anticipated revenue. The amount borrowed on the revenue was $50,000, but the sum was increased to $78,000 by a judgment rendered against the county by federal court.

Mr. Sewell said that none of the officials of the county were "positive" about its fiscal affairs which are handled by a "very loose system."

The county has cash of $4,000 in the sinking fund, has sold no bonds since July 1, 1932, has failed to meet its obligations of $10,000, does not operate under a budget system and has increased its indebtedness since July 1, 1932.

The assessed valuation of Morgan county for 1931 was $3,865,078, which dropped to $3,769,894 in 1932. The tax rate for county purposes is 70 cents and for school purposes is 75 cents on the $100 valuation.

Salaries of county officials amount to $9,110 a year, Mr. Sewell said. He listed them as follows:

County Judge, $2,400; county attorney, $1,200; county clerk, $800; circuit clerk, $240; jailer, $500; road engineer, $800; treasurer, $250; county health unit, $500; school superintendent, $2,000, and clerk to superintendent $420, A. P. News Service.

Christian Church Services

There will be preaching by Rev. Harlan Murphy at the Christian Church, Sunday, April 9 at 11 A. M. and also at 7 P. M. of the same day.

who had been given the helm of the boat while his master slept, and who was instructed to sail straight toward a certain star. But his unskillful handling the boat wobbled until the man woke the captain with "Massa, come, gimme 'nuther star! I've done sailed past that one!" Remember the stars and the standards are fixed and they are still far, far ahead.

COUNTY AGENTS' COLUMN

To Improve Pastures

In suggesting ways in which pastures may be improved, the dairy division of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, notes that the long pasture season is the biggest advantage that Kentucky dairymen have over the dairy farmers in more northern states.

A few pounds of Korean lespedeza seed would help old and thin pastures, it is stated. Korean lespedeza will furnish pasture during the hot, dry midsummer months when grasses are usually dried up.

A small acreage of sudan grass makes a good emergency pasture, especially for midsummer. Dairymen who tried it last year were pleased with its carrying capacity, says the dairy division of the College.

It is recommended that some clover be sowed in the permanent pasture mixture. The Experiment Station has found that bluegrass grown with clover contained 50 percent more protein and yielded twice as much as bluegrass alone.

Kentucky Farm Radio Program

The College of Agriculture will broadcast the following farm radio program from the University of Kentucky extension studios of WHAS the week of April 10. Each program will begin at 12:45, central standard time.

April 10.—Tips from the cow tester, Jim and Mr. White.

April 11.—Care and hatching of turkey eggs, J. Holmes Martin; Bluegrass and livestock, W. J. Harris.

April 12.—John Kilowatt, the farmer's chore boy, J. B. Kelley; Meat for the main dish, Alyce Razor.

April 13.—Prospects for the 1933 apple crop, A. J. Olney; Controlling costs increase dairy profits, G. B. Byars.

April 14.—What farm folks are asking, L. C. Brewer.

Knott County Industries

Of interest to persons engaged in fire insurance, rural social workers and teachers of handicrafts, will be a report on rural industries in Knott county, Kentucky, as found in a study which was made by the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky and the United States Department of Agriculture. It deals with the Knott county fire insurance industries of weaving and basket and furniture making, and with saw milling, grist milling, blacksmithing, coal mining and stone quarrying in that county.

Large Tobacco Crop

Kentucky farmers have indicated their intentions to plant 13 percent more acres of tobacco in 1933 than were grown in 1932, according to a statement from the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky, which is based upon reports made to the U. S. Department of Agriculture by a large number of tobacco growers in all parts of the state. Increases are indicated for all types of tobacco grown in Kentucky except Green River, the acreage of which growers intend to decrease 10 percent from the unusually small acreage of 1932.

If growers follow out their intention, says the Experiment Station statement, the acreage devoted to Burley tobacco in Kentucky and surrounding states will be the largest ever grown, being 23 percent larger than last year and three percent larger than the record crop of 1931. Average yields on such an acreage would produce a crop of about 415,000,000 pounds when present annual requirements are only about 390,000,000.

Growers of One-Sucker tobacco, around Bowling Green and Franklin, intend to increase their acreage this year by 11 percent. With normal yields this would produce a crop of about 20,000,000 pounds, which probably is about in line with annual requirements. Green River growers plan to increase their acreage by 10 percent, perhaps by shifting to burley. This small acreage, with normal yields would produce about 20 million pounds or one of the smallest crops on record. Market conditions for this type have been so unsatisfactory, however, so there is little encouragement for farmers to continue growing it.

In the dark-fired type, growers plan to maintain their acreage of the Eastern type, increase the Western by 10 percent and increase Henderson stemming tobacco by 9 percent. With average yields per acre, these changes would maintain production at the 1932 level, when yields per acre were above normal. The domestic use of fire-cured tobacco is declining, however, and foreign markets are losing their importance; so prospects for the coming year are none too bright.

Spraying Fruit Trees

Timely and practical information on spraying fruit trees is given in a series of leaflets published by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, for free distribution among fruit growers. Copies may be obtained from county agents or by writing to the College, giving number and title of leaflet wanted. Those published to date are: No. 10, "Peach Sprays for the Small Orchard;" No. 11, "Grape Sprays;" No. 12, "Apple Sprays for the Home Orchard;" No. 13, "Cherry Spray Schedule;" and No. 14, "Insect and Disease Control for Small Fruits."

MORGAN CATTLE TO BE TESTED

Through action of the Morgan County Fiscal Court, the cooperative plan of the Kentucky Live Stock Sanitary Board and the United States Bureau of Animal Industry in eradicating Tuberculosis from cattle was unanimously agreed upon.

The Fiscal Court is to be commended upon this movement, for this wonderful work is progressive, economic and a great public health measure.

The State of Kentucky has completed or is now working in 109 counties; in approximately six months all counties in the State will have all their cattle tuberculin tested or engaged in this project.

The work in Morgan county will be done by the so-called intensive plan; that is, places will be designated where the people are to bring their cattle to be tuberculin tested, and the entire county will be completed in one week's time, as the State and Government will have a force of veterinarians in the county for this one week.

The work will start Monday morning, May 15, regardless of weather conditions.

At a later date completed schedules for the entire county will be furnished to all members of the Fiscal Court and the people will be advised giving the day, time and place for each community where the cattle will be tuberculin tested.

The cooperation of all people in Morgan county should be given to make this project a success.

There is no charge to owners of cattle for the tuberculin testing; the test is absolutely harmless.

If an animal reacts to the test, that shows it has tuberculosis; it is condemned and appraised, the State and Government pay the owners their share of the appraisal and the animal is destroyed.

It is important to be sure your cattle are free of tuberculosis; there is only one way to be certain and that is to tuberculin test your cattle.

Bear in mind one tuberculin cow will give the disease to other cattle and may give the disease to a member of one's family.

The people of Morgan county should give their hearty cooperation in assisting to accomplish the tuberculin testing of all cattle, excepting steers, during the week beginning May 15.

Any further information may be had by consulting members of Morgan County Fiscal Court, Morgan County Health Unit, and Mr. Gabbard, County Agent.

States Legalize Gambling

A wave of agitation for the legalization of gambling on horse races seems to be sweeping across the nation, reports the March 29 issue of "The Christian Century." In addition to the seven states in which such gambling has been legal, five more—Indiana, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Washington—have this year provided for pari-mutuel betting at race tracks, and the legislatures of fifteen states are reported to be considering similar bills.

14,500 Banks Now Open

Of the 18,000 banks doing business in the United States before State and National Bank Holidays, 14,500 have reopened according to a weekly list published by the Commerce Clearing House, Chicago. The current list further discloses Texas leading in numbers with 1,022 banks now open. New York has 816 and Alaska 1, Michigan has reopened 135 of her banking institutions.

People's Column

REDUCE SALARIES

Dear People's Column:

I have been reading the many letters of this column with very much interest and wish to contribute a few words.

I think it high time Morgan county taxpayers and voters should begin to realize just where Morgan county stands.

Should we stand by without saying and doing all we can, and let our county get deeper and deeper in debt and our taxes still mount and go up? I say no!

The voters and taxpayers should demand and vote for men for county officers who will cut out the outrageous salaries and give only living salaries and cut out and abolish a good many offices until Morgan county gets on its feet.

Eight hundred dollars a year for county judge is enough. His fees besides his salary will make him much more. County attorney's salary should be cut to $600 a year, county superintendent of schools to $1,000 a year, without any assistant. In fact cut every officers salary, abolishing county agent, assistant to county superintendent, county health officer and county road engineer until Morgan county gets out of debt. I feel sure we have men in Morgan county who would take these offices for these salaries and help our county.

Yours respectfully

Cecil F. Hutchinson

SELECTION OF TEACHERS

The following is reprinted from the Point of View Column of the Courier Journal by request:

I was very much interested in what Mr. Lawson said about the young graduates teaching the schools. Let me first say I am not a teacher, but I am a taxpayer and have children of school age. The conditions are most deplorable. Well qualified teachers of years of experience, teachers who understand the work and are able to conduct schools that would be a credit to any community are turned out to make a place for some girl who has never taught but who claims she needs money. The trustees will put such teachers in and they think it is charity. They don't seem to have any pity on the children they rob. They see the schools going down, worse and worse, but the pity for some girl needing money is a great deal deeper to them than the pity for the children of the district. There are always some good men in a district who see how things should be managed, but each year it is such a row over the trustee election these men prefer not to be in the fight. It was not intended for every one to make a successful school teacher, and when one is found to be a success who not use him or her?

Yes, I say use a new superintendent as well as a new teacher, and get one who will help employ a teacher who has a certificate of real qualification instead of a hard luck tale to tell. And by all means let us vote a secret ballot for trustees. People vote to keep down hard feelings when they admit they are against their own interest, vote just because it's a neighbor or some relative. Let the people vote for the teacher who will give best service and not the one who just needs some money. Our children need an education a great deal worse. Put in more trustees and vote secret. Elect superintendents who stand for service first, and not for their personal friends. We are all paying too much tax for school purposes to stand by and see our little ones robbed year after year to buy some girl a few pretty clothes. When we hire other labor we get the one who will do the best work. Why not select the teachers in that way? A teacher has no incentive now.

A DISGUSTED TAXPAYER

Elizabethtown News Opins

Pity the person more interested in the stars of Hollywood than the star of Bethlehem.

The money turned over to the Hoover Farm Board seems to have been the real Government sinking fund.

The writer who refers to Mr. Mellon as a child of fortune is slightly mistaken. He is the father of the deficit.

Mrs. Longworth said during the campaign that Franklin Roosevelt was only her fifth cousin. Now she is only his fifth cousin.

Roosevelt's "brain trust" would be more reassuring if we didn't remember that Harding called on the "best minds" to help him.

You can see through the courthouse in Elizabethtown now, but nobody will ever be able to see through some of the things that have been done there in the past sixty years.

Kansas Loyal

The Kansas Legislature refused to call a convention to determine whether that state would vote for the continuance of the 18th amendment or for the repeal of the same. The Kansas Legislature by refusing to submit the question has voted "No." Thirty-six states are required to repeal the 18th amendment and any state that refuses to call a convention will count just as much against the repeal of the amendment as if it had called a convention and the convention had voted against repeal. In other words, abstaining from voting by any state puts that state on the negative side of the question and if twelve other states join Kansas and refuse to call a convention then the repeal of the 18th amendment will be defeated.—Elizabethtown News.

Confidence in President

Louisville, Ky.—As fast as American Legion posts meet throughout Kentucky they are following the lead of their National Commander, Louis A. Johnson, by pledging support to President Roosevelt in his efforts to restore prosperity. In most cases, the Legionnaires are endorsing the statement of their National Commander in asserting that although recent veterans' legislation is fraught with gravest consequences to the disabled veteran, the Legion has every faith in the discretion, fairness and justice with which the President will deal with this problem—involving as it does the need of compassion and mercy.

BOB JONES COMMENTS

The greatest master on assemblies the world ever saw was Jesus Christ. He knew what to do with crowds. One time there was a multitude in the desert. It was a hungry multitude. He told His disciples to have them sit down on the ground. He performed a miracle and fed the crowd.

Jesus with His appeal to the masses could have built a university at Jerusalem. He could have enrolled thousands of students. He could have raised all the money He needed. He could have made this university the center of world culture.

Jesus enrolled twelve students in His college. He enrolled these by an interesting process of selection. He didn't tell them, "We have the finest football team in the world." He didn't say, "Our institution is endowed and standardized." He never told them their credits would be accepted by another school.

If a man wanted to enroll in the Jesus College He said to him, "Can you rough it? Can you sleep out at night? Can you stand a rock for a pillow? I am looking for students who can endure hardships." A man came to enroll as a student and Jesus didn't say, "Buy some books." He said, "Get a cross. I'm looking for folks who can die with me." That sort of appeal would eliminate nine-tenths of all the college students of America. But Jesus was looking for quality, not quantity.

Jesus paid no attention to standardization. His college would be ruled out by every educational association in America today. "They teach in this Pharisee school," He said, "such and such a theory, but I say unto you, so-and-so." The only laboratory Jesus had was a dining room at a wedding feast where he changed water into wine. His classroom was a seashore and a hillside. The only library He had aside from the Old Testament Scriptures, was flowers, birds, men, stars, etc.

Even though Jesus was careful in His selection of students, one of the twelve turned out bad. There was a boy named Judas who was a double-crosser. He had to be shipped. One day they killed the President of the little college. There were no buildings to burn, no books to be destroyed. The school didn't last but three years. But that little school which enrolled only twelve students, has revolutionized the world. The greatest occasion since the resurrection and ascension of Jesus Christ was the day of Pentecost. The only school that could produce a preacher for that occasion was the school established by Jesus of Nazareth.

How large are the stars? To the average individual their size is hard to comprehend, but Dr. Edwin B. Frost, famous blind astronomer in Child Life Magazine, solves the problem. The sun, he says, is 350,000 times as large as the earth, and yet some huge stars are forty million times larger than the sun.

Our Government —How It Operates

By William Bruckart

THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

THERE is one characteristic of the American people that constitutes something of a puzzle to me. Whenever they have dealings with their government that result in disagreement, they simply rebel against a compromise. They want to go to court and fight it.

That reference, of course, is to civil matters. Criminal charges of which the government necessarily is the prosecutor occupy a different status. In theory, there may be no compromise in this respect.

Since the government must protect its own rights as well as prosecute individuals who violate the rights of others, it is readily seen that it requires a great law office to look after the business of the distinguished client, Uncle Sam. He really has an immense amount of litigation and in view of that fact he has his lawyers scattered in every important city in every state in the Union. They are so distributed as to make them available to the greatest number of people and thus avoid as much expense to the individuals and to the government as may be, since it would be impossible to place them in every community.

The government's law office, the Department of Justice with a cabinet member, the attorney general of the United States, at its head, naturally has to have its headquarters in Washington. The attorney general is just like the general attorney for a railroad or a bank or any other organization. He is the legal adviser to the President of the United States, among his other duties, and represents the United States in every matter in which the United States has an interest. He, or one of his representatives, represents the United States likewise whenever penal statutes are invoked against anyone who transgresses the law of the land.

There is no better way to show the varied interests with which this immense law office is concerned than to set out its administrative organization for handling the vast amount of work.

The attorney general, of course, is the boss. His right-hand man is the solicitor general of the United States, who appears in behalf of the attorney general at all times in the Supreme Court of the United States. There is an assistant to the attorney general, an office created especially to deal with one type of prosecution, namely, the anti-trust law violator.

Seven assistant attorney generals serve in their respective fields with more or less limited subjects that they may become specialists in their work. One of them deals exclusively with questions involving tax laws and enforcement of prohibition; a second devotes his time to defending the government's interests in the United States court of claims where Uncle Sam is always a defendant and never a complainant in suits for money; a third has an assignment of work in connection with admiralty litigation and foreign relations as well as much of the financial controversies in which the government is concerned; a fourth does nothing but consider the government's rights in land matters, and with the memory of oil scandals still in mind the job embraces great detail; a fifth assistant attorney general is the official criminal prosecutor of the great law office; a sixth is a highly trained lawyer in matters of customs, the laying of duties at the customs houses, appraisements of merchandise and such like, and the other official of this class seems to be the general superintendent, for it is he who watches over the scores of United States attorneys who represent Uncle Sam in their respective jurisdictions throughout the country.

It must be remembered, however, that before the automobile thief or the bootlegger is convicted, there must be evidence to satisfy a court and a jury that the defendant is guilty. So this law office has a group of highly trained investigators who do nothing but run down criminals and gather evidence.

The Department of Justice now has charge of enforcement of the prohibition laws, too.

But the policy of the government is to look after its citizens who have been found guilty of law violation, and the attorney general is charged with that duty as well. He manages, through his subordinates, of course, every penal and correctional institution operated by the federal government, and in connection with them carries out the national policy of trying to make better citizens out of violators before they are released again into society. There is a parole system and an arrangement for pardons, the latter a matter left to the President, and constant attention is given to means of improving those prisoners who will accept instruction as a means of equipping them to earn a livelihood without resorting to crime.

The courts, of course, provide the machinery through which much of the Department of Justice work is accomplished, but the judiciary constitutes the third branch of the government and ought to be treated aside from the executive establishment of which the government's law office is a part.

Our Government —How It Operates

By William Bruckart

HUNTING THE MARKETS

IT is untrue to say that commerce knows no barriers, yet it must be explained that it knows no barrier insofar as the age-old law of supply and demand is concerned. Where the demand is sufficient, there commerce will flow just as surely as water seeks its own level.

Hence, a great commercial and industrial people, if they are to remain so, must be kept acquainted with where that demand is. Unless they are apprised, and apprised quickly of the existence of a market, there is a very real danger that some enterprising group elsewhere will become the early bird that catches the worm.

Without fear of contradiction, I think it can be said, the fact that American export trade has captured so much of the world trade has been attributable to the ever watchful eye of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. In this unit of the great Department of Commerce has centered the work of keeping a finger on the world's business pulse. It has known the intimate heartbeat of many a tick-know trade corner; it has been informed by letter, by cable, by radio, of what those needs are, or are expected to be. The information it has gained has been quickly spread to all interested parties in this country.

For instance, regularly the bureau makes public reports from the rubber estates of Ceylon. With equal regularity, it receives and disseminates the latest details of the Bradford wool prices. Again, it receives and passes to the trade here the facts about the newest tariff decrees of every country that occupies a position of importance in our export market, and that just about covers the entire world.

Taking things chronologically, let us examine first into the methods employed by the government in getting this information, leaving to other articles later an exposition of what is done with the facts by the bureau and by the citizens of the nation for whom they are gathered.

There is what is called in a general term, the foreign service of the United States. That corps comprises representatives of the Department of State as well as the Department of Commerce. The Department of Commerce men, obviously, are trade men. Those of the State department may not be so classified, for some of them—many of them, in fact—have other duties that are more important to the executive department which they serve.

In every important capital, there is an official attached to the embassy or legation who is called a commercial attaché. In addition, there is stationed at same post a trade commissioner. The former is a State department man, while the latter is strictly what his title implies. Trade commissioners are assigned as well to many commercial and industrial centers.

In addition to all of those men, there are consuls and vice consuls galore, literally scores of them. Each of these individuals has been trained to examine the economic and financial conditions of the territory under his supervision; each has overlooked no opportunity to study the trade needs, the market potentialities, and appraise the problems related to the selling of American products and buying for American consumption.

They will know, for example, whether the railways of Brazil are going to need additional rubber hose for passenger car cleaning, whether the tax in Spain is going to work a hardship on holdings there of American corporations, whether the teak production of Siam is rising or declining, or whether some nation is promoting an industry of moment in the production of carbon black or other chemicals.

To show another phase of their work, let me call to attention a specific instance. The Spanish thrane was tottering. American investments in Spain, while not as large as they are in some other countries, approached $200,000,000. The question in the mind of every person interested either through his own holdings or the holdings of a corporation in which he was stockholder was what effect that political condition would have on his money. The trade commissioner and the consuls were sending daily dispatches to Washington, relating every development on which they could gain information. When the monarch fell and a de facto government was set up, those dispatches did not cease. Indeed, they came faster than ever. The result was that officials of the Department of Commerce knew almost instantly what difficulties faced the American investor, the American exporter or the American importer and let it be said here that they had a veritable deluge of inquiries concerning them.

Not all of the facts thus gathered are handled with that celerity. More often, the information is assembled slowly, methodically, carefully, from all of the sources, public and private, to which an official representative has access. Statistics are quoted fully, and a picture drawn from them to make the information as accurate and as simple as it is possible to obtain. That the American in touch with the Department of Commerce may have available for his guidance all of the details. Any one of them may be vital.

HAPPY GIRL

MATTIE L. OAKLEY

Mrs. Mattie L. Oakley was born Jan. 26, 1872 and departed this life March 22, 1933, was laid to rest Friday, March 24, 1933.

Mrs. Oakley was a descendant of one of the most progressive families of Morgan county, being the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Perry of Pleasant Run. Two great families were united when on Feb. 29, 1888, Miss Mattie L. Perry was united in marriage to R. M. Oakley, also of Pleasant Run.

Mrs. Oakley was a brilliant young woman and of a business turn of mind. Her husband at once became a business partner with her father in the mercantile business at Pleasant Run. For nineteen years she took an active part in the business. When in 1910 they moved to West Liberty, Mrs. Oakley became the most efficient manager of their store, until just a few years ago and proudly assisted in the education of their children. Even when her health failed she had a wonderfully active mind and continued her business activities. Within less than a week of her death she received money, wrote checks and kept a careful account of all her business transactions.

There was born to this union five children, two of whom survive: Dr. W. J. Oakley of Bardstown and Mrs. Fred C. Schreiber of New Britain, Conn. Dr. Oakley had been with his mother since Saturday before her death, as was her sister Carrie, Mrs. W. G. Oakley of Louisville. Her sister, Lulu, Mrs. C. S. Jackson of Louisville, was with her Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Schreiber arrived Thursday. Other relatives came her sister, Mrs. W. W. McClure of New Albany, Ind.; her only brother, Joseph W. Perry and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Perry of Morehead; her nephews, Dr. and Mrs. O. M. Oakley of Louisville and Dr. Fred Oakley of Taylorsville; her niece, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Carter, Louisa; her cousin, Miss Olive Day of Morehead, she also has a loving niece in West Liberty, Mrs. D. H. Perry. There was a strong affection between Mrs. Oakley and her sister, who assisted so much in her long illness. Her children also, were attentive. Her daughter cared untiringly for her mother until her health broke. Most remarkable of all, was the cheerful, patient, untiring care of her husband at her bedside. Money was not spared. All medical science was at her command, but no improvement was ever permanent.

For eight long years, Mrs. Oakley had suffered from arthritis and neuritis. She tried hard to get well, but never once was she impatient. Even in the most excruciating pain she murmured not. She always wore a sweet, cheerful expression. She had a fine personality and scattered sunshine and radiated happiness to everyone who entered her room. Even the little children loved to sit with her. Her acquaintance was county wide. Friends came from far and near. They were always welcomed to the table by both husband and wife and there was always lodging for the weary. She took a keen interest in each visitor and always found a way to be helpful. She never lost interest in her community. She was a great help to the local paper, always thinking of the subscribers in other counties and in other states. Her place cannot be filled.

Mrs. Oakley was converted at the age of twenty-one and lived true to her faith. Her Bible was her guide and her Savior her companion. She was a member of the M. E. South Church, West Liberty, and attended all services as long as health permitted. Her pastor and wife were among her dearest friends. Rev. Harlan Murphy, life long friend, read Proverbs 31:10-31, which is such an appropriate eulogy of her life. He very truly said that Mrs. Oakley was one of the greatest saints which have ever lived in the community. Rev. Harlan McClure another life long friend, by request sang, If I Could Hear My Mother Pray Again. Her pastor, Rev. I. J. Scudder spoke from Psalms 116:15. He knew this sweet Christian character so well and in such fitting language paid the tribute due. She had selected her songs. W. M. Gardner sang, The Old Rugged Cross, a quartet sang, Tell My Mother I'll Be There and Mrs. J. L. Blair sang so beautifully, Face To Face. The casket was placed on the lawn, the family was seated on the porch and the ministers stood on the walk leading to the street. The host of friends spoke with greater volume than the beautiful floral display. The Eastern Star lined up in regular form closed with a beautiful service.

The remains were taken to the Perry cemetery at Muscle Shoals followed by the relatives and a few friends. A great concourse of friends from the surrounding communities were in waiting. A few more favorite songs were sung. Rev. McClure made a few fitting remarks, then conducted the committal service. A devoted wife, a conscientious, fond mother, an affectionate sister, a friend missed by everyone in the community has passed to her rich reward, but her influence lives on still bearing fruit for her Master.
